

To date, RSCF has returned 35 critically endangered mountain bongo to Kenya.

RSCF houses the only red-browed Amazon colony in North America.

RSCF is home to the largest captive colony of pygmy marmosets in North America.

Give Wildlife A Fighting Chance

For critically endangered species, the margin between survival and extinction is razor thin. Your gift funds the fieldwork, breeding programs, and reintroductions that tip the balance toward life.

Who We Are

RSCF is a hands-on organization willing to take risks that larger institutions cannot. As space for nature diminishes and species are in crisis, our job is to develop and implement real-time solutions to the complex problems threatening global biodiversity, resource management and human/wildlife conflict.

Our programs span over three decades, understanding that conservation is a long game. For species on the edge, the ultimate goal is recovery, even when the first step may in fact be rescue.

Whether in the wild or in captivity, species on the edge deserve our very best efforts. Our motto is our promise:

Whatever it takes, for as long as it takes.

How We Work

EXPERTISE

- Design sustainable breeding, recovery, reintroduction, and protection programs for species at risk of extinction.

PARTNERSHIPS

- Collaborate with governments, NGOs, and like-minded organizations to restore target species, fight wildlife trade and protect critical habitat.

COLLABORATION

- Provide consulting and technical services to international conservation teams around the world.

Fuel the Mission

Maintaining healthy wildlife populations, recovering endangered species, and restoring impaired ecosystems all require sustained funding, and sustained belief.

With your support, we promise to speak for the vast biomass on our planet that has no voice in human affairs, and to secure a future for species in peril.

Your donation offers hope and opportunity for wildlife at this time of greatest need.

100% of all contributions directly support conservation projects for critical species.
